2ND QUARTER 2015

VOL 4 ISSUE 2

The second quarter of 2015 has been a busy one! SWS is proud and excited about the recent projects we have been working on and look forward to even more projects in the future. Our employees enjoy working on many various projects and design styles.

A special thanks to Gunnar Brinck, with Disdero Lumber Co., our laminated decking supplier, for joining us at the convention. We enjoyed working with Gunnar and look forward to doing it again.

SWS is proud to have such dedicated employees, who are excited to introduce our products to prospective customers.

The convention allows architects to meet vendors from around the country and see, up close, the quality of work suppliers such as SWS can provide.

The American Institute of Architects
National Convention

This quarter SWS was pleased to share some of our favorite projects and showcase our craftsmanship at the National AIA Convention. Chief Estimator, Nicole Salter, Estimator, Trisha Crook and Engineer, Eric Fennell (pictured left) travelled to Atlanta, Georgia for this year's National AIA Convention.

Prior to the convention, SWS was hard at work building a booth that highlighted some of the custom work for which we are known. Everything for our booth was manufactured at SWS, from the laminated beams and columns, to the 2"x6" solid timber decking and prime painted steel connections.

SWS was pleased that two of our Sales Agents, Frank Sledge and Chris Eason, were able to visit us at the convention.

We look forward to future conventions and more challenging projects. One thing is certain, it is hard to beat the beauty and diversity of our Southern Pine glulam.
